EXPERIENCE THE UNITED NATIONS AT WORK

INTERNSHIP

Are you a recent graduate or enrolled in a graduate program?

Are you interested in making a difference in environmental research and policy?

Do you have a commitment towards addressing issues of international importance related to water, environment and health?

“My internship at UNU-INWEH gave me an insight into the UN system and the possibility to work on a variety of interesting water-related topics. Interacting with experts and participating in their work was a very valuable experience.”

Lucie Vermeulen (the Netherlands), 2011

The United Nations University (UNU) is the academic arm of the United Nations (UN) because it bridges the academic world to the UN system.

The UNU-INWEH Internship Programme could be your next step towards contributing to global issues concerning water, environment and health.
